

Homeless Shelters Bed Spacing

As germs in respiratory droplets (e.g., coughing and sneezing) can spread up to two metres, aim for beds to be spaced so that there is a separation of two metres between clients to decrease the risk of spreading of germs.

Examples of ways a two-metre bed spacing can be achieved are through a head-to-toe bed placement as shown in Example A, or a staggering of beds as shown in Example B.

